

Velveteens Popular For Autumn Wear

Velvet Is Also a Favorite in All Black.

By CHARLES NICHOLAS
Velvet and velveteen in shades of black or dark are about to "steal the show" this fall. The ingenious designers are working bright velveteens or handsome black velvet as cuts into the fashion picture is simply breathtaking!

It's velveteen for everything from suits to accessories. There is a rush for autumn-toned velveteens, dusky browns, forest greens, and reds from the deep-sea dye to flaming hues.

These are tailored into smart suits made spectacular with dramatic fur. What a glorious picture they paint on the autumn landscape!

Even age and schoolgirl collections have one charming little velveteen afternoon dress after another, some of them gaily embroidered in peasant yarns.

But the most exciting uses being made of velvet and velveteen are either as trimming or in combination with other fabrics.

Style creators are making news by going back to the "Gay Nineties" for such inspirations as velvet frills and ruffles about skirt hemlines. A hint of this Victorian detail is seen in afternoon dresses simply styled of tulle or beige wools finished about the hemline and sleeve edges with a ruffle of black velvet ribbon.

Here's another exciting use of velvet. It's the light cloth dress with velvet sleeves in black, brown or deep green.

Often a velvet pelum or overskirt effect is added to the wool dress either in the same color or in a daring contrast. And a chic two-piece dress tops a wool skirt with a long-torso blouse of velveteen in the identical color.

Other uses of velvet stress suits that are piped or bound with velvet, or have lapels, collars, cuffs and buttons of velvet. New and sophisticated wool dresses have entire front panels and insets of velvet in a matching color.

Furs in Fashion

All signs point to a lavish use of fur on coats and suits this fall and winter. This coat costume was one among a galaxy of handsome furred fashions displayed by the Style Creators of Chicago at their recent autumn and winter style preview, which they presented to a most enthusiastic and appreciative audience. The dress in sheer wool matches the coat in color and has a lovely ruffled ornament set in oxidized silver. The pillbox hat has a cascade of felt feathers bound in grosgrain. The entire hat is enveloped in a cloud of veiling.

Style Notes

The theme of current fashions is the "Gay Nineties". Suit silhouettes tend to be to the straight and narrow.

Double duty costumes come with a long and a short skirt. Ornate and fluttering shawls enhance the newest dresses.

The campus set favors a red or a bold sweater this fall. Exotic tail draped turbans reflect the influence of the picturesque Far East.

Cape costumes in handsome materials are outstanding for town and travel wear.

Tiny jet dinner hats complementing the trim on black gowns are being featured.

You can now "matchmake" in identically dyed skirts, sweaters and jackets.

Feature Ensembles In Costume Jewelry

It is a season of pretentious, important-looking costume jewelry. The massive sort predominates, such as huge wide bracelets with massive necklaces. Great clusters of colored stones or rhinestones form spectacular lapel pieces. Topaz and amber are in high fashion, to wear with autumn browns.

The newest effect comes from three separate pieces, varying in size but otherwise identical, that clip to dress or coat lapel in groups. Matched to these are earrings, bracelets and often finger rings.
